SANTRAGACHI, HOWRAH

Information as per Clause(b) of Sub-section 1 of Section 4 of Right to Information Act, 2005

IV (1) bi : The particulars of Govt. of India Press, Santragachi, Howrah, Function and duties.

In the year 1863 the Govt. of India decided to establish in Calcutta and Central Press in which administration reports, codes and miscellaneous work could be printed. The Secretariate Printing Offices then in existence confining themselves to current despatches and proceedings. In January, 1864, the orders of the various department of Govt. of India and the Acts and Bills of Governor General's Council which were formerly published in Calcutta Gazette were transferred to a new publication, the Gazette of India to which was appended a supplement containing official correspondence on the subject of interest of officers and to the general public. In 1876 a system of payment of piece rates was introduced in the composing Branch and subsequently in the distributing, printing and book binding Branches. In June, 1885, the presses of the Home and Public works Department were amalgamated with the Central press. The expansion of the Central Press from a strength of 109 employees, 1863, to that 2114 in 1889 necessiated the provision of additional accommodation pending the building of the Secretariate, the press was located from 1882 to 1885 at 165, Dharmatala Street. On completion of the Secretariate Building the Composing, Machine, press and warehouse, with the administration, Accounts and computing Branches were removed to 8, Hastings Street in 1886.

During the World War II, work mostly in Connection with the war increased by leaps and bounds and to cope with the increases of volume of work the minimum strength of additional staff was recruited as a temporary measure and Night Shift was started in the year 1944 with the advent of Independence and consequent expansion of Govt. activities, the establishment were also increased. The press was in the past published Betar Yagat every week. This press has been publishing Indian Trade Journal. In the last few decades. In addition to Indian Trade Journal some most important books as well as forms of various department such as National Library, Positional Astronomy, P&T Department, Army are printed here.

Govt. of India press, Santragachi earlier was working at S.K.S. Roy Road, kolkata but to cope with the expanded activity of this press and to relieve the prevailing congestion in the main press, a Branch productions Unit was started from January 1959 at Santragachi by augmentation transfer from the main press of staff and necessary mechanical composing and Printing machines to make it a self-contained unit measure. It has finally been decided to resite this press at Santragachi with a residential colony at an estimate outlay of about 2 croes and seventy eight lakhs of rupees. The resitting work was completed in 1974-75.

Very recently the Govt. of India Press Forms Unit was marged with Govt. of India Press, Publication Unit, Santragachi and it is renamed as Govt. of India Press, Santragachi. The press is now working in two shift. The Manager is now assisted by there Asstt. Manager (Tech)s and two Asstt. Manager (Admn.). This press is now under modernisation presently this press is following the letter press technology.
